Captain Myers said that he was most happy to welcome them on this most auspicious occasion, which he thought was one full worthy of celebration and of congratulation. As the Howitzers have proved themselves so worthy of public consideration in the past, he hoped that the city and State's government would accordail the help they could possibly give in the future, as the Howitzers' represented a reserve portion of the State police which could not be easily slighted. It appealed especially to the business men of the city, among whom many of the Howitzers are employed, that they would render all the ald in their power, as without their permission many of the members would be prevented from taking an active part in the work of the company. He spoke in an eloquent strain of the members would be prevented from taking an active part in the work of the company. He spoke in an eloquent strain of the Howitzers' command.

Mayor McCarthy was then introduced. He bespoke a general interest by his humorous manner, and, waxing more serious, spoke of the gross treatment and neglect with which the national government treated the officers of the regular army, hoping that better times would come. He added to the terms of praise that had been accorded to the great leaders of the Confederacy, and said that Jackson was generally agreed upon as being the greatest leader in military solence that the world has ever seen. He also took occasion to refer to the dependence of the regular army, upon the military organizations of the country.

Congressman Lamb next took the floor, and rectited the story of the campaign of the Howitzers from Bethel to Appomaticx, saying that they were the first at the battle of Bethel, the furthest at the slege of Cetysburg, and the last at Appomaticx. He was unsparing in his

NOT GUILTY OF MARCUM MURDER

This Verdict Returned in Cases of James Hargis and Edward Callahan

END OF A NOTABLE CASE

Curtis Jett, on the Stand, Renounces His Confession and Acquittal Follows.

BEATTYVILLE, KY., July 17.—The jury in the Hargis-Callaban trial returned verdict of not guilty after being out wenty-two minutes. The case was one of the most stubbornly contested a Kentucky court has had for years. The men were charged with the murder of J. B Maroum. James B. Marcum was a Republican and was a lawyer of excellent standing. He was engaged three years ago as an attorney against James Hargis and Edward Callahan, respectively Democratic county judge and sheriff, to oust them from their offices on an allegation of cor-rupt election. Much bitterness was aroused and frequent open ruptures oc-urred.

In May, 1903, Marcum was shot in the back and killed in the Jackson court-house. Curtls Jett and "Tom" White were convicted and given life terms for were convicted and given life terms for the murder. It was charged that they were the tools of Callahan, Hargis and others. Jett, after his conviction, confessed that he shot Marcum and that his act was inspired by Callahan and Hargis. On the witness stand, however, he repudiated the confession and said he alone was responsible. The acquittal followed largely on this repudiation.

A jury of Cark county citizens returned a verdict for $3,000 damages a year ago against Hargis, on the allegation that he had caused Marcum to be killed. The suit was filed by Mrs. Marcum.
